Bud Mecham family does apple head memory tree

By RENEE C. NELSON
Herald Today Editor

Children will not only be wide-eyed by the Festival of Trees, but also amused by the sometimes humorous figures on trees, like the apple faces on one of the trees done by a Center Creek, Wasatch County family.

The Bud Mecham family of P.O. Box, Heber City, decorated a tree in memory of a niece, Trisha Ann Tanner, daughter of Doug and Kathleen Tanner, Grouse Creek, Box Elder County near the Utah/Idaho border.

Trisha was born in Aug. 1984 and died two years later from a cancerous growth on her brain stem.

"It doesn't even have a name, it is so rare," said her uncle."

Her funeral was on her second birth-date.

The tree — created in her memory — featured elves, Santas, angels, toy soldiers and other figures carved from apples then dipped in varnish. (It was also featured in Wednesday's paper).

"We started carving the apples about four month's ago," said Mecham. "The families of my two oldest brothers along with our family and my sister's (the mother of Trisha Ann) did the finishing touches on Thanksgiving at the Tanner home in Grouse Creek."

It is just another example of the "labor of love" that goes into the Festival of Trees benefit for Primary Children's Hospital.

RECORDER

"The Vote That Counts"

Charlotte Mecham was born and raised in Springville and moved to Orem five years ago.

Charlotte is running for County Recorder. Mecham.

She feels that we could have better government in Utah County, if:

The term of all elected officials was limited to no more than two consecutive terms.

All elected officials be required to be on the job every day.
